Prize award

In 2019, in its second iteration, the Adam Kilgarriff Prize attracted nine high-quality applications. The Prize was awarded to Matt Kohl for his innovative multimedia Hip-Hop dictionary, The Right Rhymes. A model of corpus-driven lexicography, The Right Rhymes incorporates many features (such as data visualization and links to external data) which are frequently talked about in the lexicographic literature, but not often implemented. The result is a serious interactive dictionary which is also a lot of fun to use.

In 2019, the Prize fund received two donations totalling €3968.00:
